RICHMOND SEEKS NEXT CONVENTION

T. P. A. Delegates at Peoria Are Waging Vigorous Campaign.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Peoria, Ill., June 17.—Interest in the twenty-third annual national convention of the T. P. A., which began in Peoria this morning, centres in the selection of the 1913 meeting place. Richmond, represented by the entire Virginia delegation, marched into the running early, and is waging the most energetic campaign for the honor. The fight lies between Houston, Buffalo and Richmond, with the latter city apparently having the support of the most solid delegations. George W. Rogers is in charge of the campaign for Richmond. Seven hundred delegates had arrived at noon.
This morning there was a big parade and later the initial business session. The real business begins tomorrow.
Walter Saunders of Richmond, responded to the address of welcome. Committees on credentials, on rules and order of business were named. Tonight there was a smoker.

PROTEST FROM FREDERICKSBURG

Action of National Committee May Necessitate Formation of New Party.
(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Fredericksburg, Va., June 17.—At a mass-meeting of Republicans held here tonight, presided over by Henry Warden, city chairman, resolutions offered by W. D. Carter were adopted, condemning the action of the National Republican Committee in deciding contests between contesting delegations, and suggesting that the action of the committee in this regard if persisted in may make necessary the formation of a new progressive party to effectuate the will of the majority instead of the dictations of the bosses. The resolutions were ordered to be telegraphed to State Chairman C. Bascom Slemp and National Committeeman Alvin H. Martin, of Virginia, at Chicago. The members of the Taft wing of the party here did not attend the meeting.

CITY'S SCALES ALWAYS WRONG

They May Weigh Correctly When Accumulation of Dust Is Cleaned Out.

While the Council Committee on Markets was investigating reported inaccuracies of the city scales last night, a representative of S. T. Beveridge & Co., appeared before the Committee on Streets with the complaint that in feed sold the department since January 1, his company had lost in short weights the sum of $18.42. He explained that the weights were checked both by the scales of the Street Department and those at his store, which tallied, but stated that the "official" weighing machine was always short. In this statement he was upheld by City Engineer Bolling, and his bill was ordered paid. A motion was made to bring the matter to the attention of the Committee on Markets.

At the same time it came out before the Committee on Markets that on account of the accumulation of dust in the scales they had been found to weigh inaccurately when large loads were placed upon them. They were ordered repaired, and all the claims will be settled.

Mr. Canepa, who resides on the street bearing his name, appeared before the Street Committee stating that the ravine running along his property and that of others living in the vicinity, was a nuisance because several sewers emptied into it and there was not enough water to accommodate the drainage.

City Engineer Bolling said that there was at this time no money available to make the improvements that Mr. Canepa wanted. He was instructed to submit to the next meeting of the committee an estimate of the cost to abate the nuisance. Mr. Canepa departed with the remark that was what he got when he asked the same thing from the committee last year.

Councilman Carter and others, owning property on the Boulevard asked that lights be placed along the thoroughfare, and that something be done to get rid of the dust. The plan has been to place along the Boulevard iron poles in the center of the street with a drop light on either side. There has not, however, been a sufficient fund to carry out this plan, and it was explained to the committee that Mr. Bolling had refused to allow the erection of wooden poles as a temporary measure.

The City Engineer's action was commended by the committee, and he was instructed to get an estimate of the cost of iron poles and report as soon as possible. A portion of the Boulevard was ordered closed.

Mr. Bolling reported that he had appointed Ira Lane to succeed former Superintendent Daniel F. Craddock, of the city's public works department, who recently died. The appointment was approved.

The committee also recommended an appropriation of $4,250 for the repair of bridges, a number of which, Mr. Bolling reported, in very bad condition.

JANNEY COUPLER INVENTOR DEAD

Served in Confederate Army on Staff of General Lee.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Alexandria, Va., June 17.—The funeral of Major Eli H. Janney, inventor of the Janney coupler, which revolutionized that part of the railroad coupling, supplanting the old coupling pin, whose death occurred last night, will take place at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from his home, 607 Cameron Street.
He is survived by the following children: Dr. Charles Janney, Robert E. Janney and Miss Nanette H. Janney. He was eighty years old, and had been an invalid for the past three years. He was a native of Loudoun county, Va. Major Janney served in the Confederate Army, and was made a field quartermaster of the staff of General R. E. Lee, being subsequently promoted to the position of major. At the close of the war he came to this city and engaged in business, subsequently patenting the coupler now bearing the name of the "M. C. B." coupler, which was afterwards adopted by all of the steam railroads.

Students Give Final Hop.
(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Alexandria, Va., June 17.—The students of the Episcopal High School tonight gave their final hop of the season in the auditorium of the Elks' Home. The affair was largely attended. Among those in attendance were a number of guests from out of the city.

AMUSEMENTS

In a Garden of Girls.
"Five Melody Maids and a Man" are featured as this week's headliners at the Empire, and probably deserve to be, but these alliteratively programmed young people, attractive as their act undoubtedly is, are compelled to divide popular favor with one Ben Smith, who, single-handed and alone, is a "knock out" with the audience.

The maids and the man play five pianos—count "em—and play" them well. As in the good old days before man was but a worm, the man is the leader and solo pianist, with the girl in purple on the right end—as the audience sees them—a close second. This lone man in a garden of girls is also a sort of singer; not a very great artist, but he gets by with his songs. Miss Reaches, the only girl whose name is given, sings as well as plays also. And, furthermore, she is gowned with a daring that might be termed recklessness—it (the gown) certainly verges on the dangerous.

Ben Smith, a black-face comedian with a high nasal tenor of the male quartet character, tells jokes and sings. His singing bears him into favor and won him a number of recalls at the first performance.
George Dixon is optimistically programmed as a musical comedian, and Fred and Opal Elliott offer "The Girl, the Rube and the Piano," with no takers.
Toomer & Hewins present a skit which is pleasing, in spite of the "Down East" twang of the man.

First Bill Pleases.
Inaugurating its usual season of summer vaudeville, the Bijou last night and yesterday afternoon drew large houses to enjoy a good bill. Kinemacolor pictures opened the performance, and were followed by Carl Garrett, singing "That Italian Serenade" in pleasing voice and to the approval of the audience. Adeline DeNette, assisted by two young men with an abundance of hair, opened the bill. The drop which the act carries is exceedingly good to look upon, and the trio can dance.
John Healy, who has handed a hundred laughs to every person in Richmond who has ever been inside a theatre, is back again. Though just as funny as ever, his stuff didn't seem to go as well as it did when he was a member of A. Field's Minstrels. It may have been the weather, but whatever the cause, the announcement that "there will be a meeting of the mission at half-past 8 in the little chapel" got a very small laugh. Paul Frances and Rose DeMa probably scored big points because of their ability. The man plays the piano and the woman acts.

and sings. The combination is altogether pleasing. Pictures conclude a very pleasant hour's entertainment.

At the Colonial.
The Colonial's offering this week is well above the average. To start with, the pictures are unusually good. That of the "Charge of the Light Brigade" being a thriller. La Vier, who professes to be the "zenith of artistic achievement," has a very startling achievement, in which he succeeds to be absolutely indifferent as to whether he breaks his neck or not. He is much more venturesome up in the ozone than the common or garden variety of aerial performers, who consider a few turns on the bar enough. Archer and Carr sing well, but "chatter" not so well. Carr has a first-class voice and sings a roundelay of sentiment that fetches the females of the species. Archer, herself, does a dance with Carr that is worth seeing. Laine and Dale, in "A Lesson in Opera," scored one, as they both have trained voices and a classy repertoire of the high-priced songs. They get off something from "Lucia" in real Caruso-Tetrazzini style which makes the Latin-blooded in the audience cast a tear for home and spaghetti. Leone does well in the "Treador's Song" and looks the part. Al Edward, the black-face minstrel comedian, is a whole show in himself, and makes one forget the hot weather and the high price of cereals. His acrobatic stunt kept the house in a roar—in fact, he is a scream all the way through, and the audience howled in vain for more. Max's International Burlesque Circus concludes the program, and is really a miniature circus. There are stunts by three trained dogs riding on his back as he dashes around the ring, and a whirling platform which makes the booths turn somersaults by way of departure, and a trick mule which comes dangerously near hurling some of its always unsuccessful riders well over the footlights. There are funny stunts by the clowns and a bull fight that makes the hair stand on end. The whole show has well mixed the elements of humor and entertainment.
